DEDICATION OF INDIAN WAR MONUMENT

A monument to the memory of Captain Edward F. Storey, who fell in a battle with the Pah-Ute Indians near Pyramid Lake, seventy years ago, is to be dedicated on October 31, Nevada's admission day, if arrangements can be completed by that time, says the Virginia City News. The shaft will be eleven feet high, and will bear a tablet containing a brief recital of Captain Storey's life.

The monument will be the gift to the local Masonic lodge of the Storey County board of commissioners, Mrs. Harry Hunter and Mrs. George Muckle, Captain Storey served in the Texas Rangers, organined Nevada volunteers to fighe the Indians, and was slain from ambush after defeating the Pah-Utes in a savage battle. Storey County was named for him.

The above clipping is of interest to our local readers inasmuch as up in the old City Cemetery there stands a stately granite shaft; alone, forgotten, and neglected on which is recorded the name of Henry Meredith, private under Captain Storey. Private Meredith was a member of Captain Storey's company and died fighting the Pah-Ute Indians at the Pyramid Lake battle of May 12, 1860.

The Indians, greatly greatly outnumbered Ranger and civilian volunteers. All day the fighting raged and Private Meredith won the admiration and respect of both the Indians and whites by his bravery and reckless fighting. As the afternoon drew on, the whites, greatly outnumbered, started to withdraw to a more secure position when Young Meredith fell, mortally wounded.

As his comrades rushed to his aid and tried to carry him back from the field, his last words were: "No, leave me here. I might put you in peril."

Meredith's body was recovered after the battle and in honor of his brave and fearless record brought to Nevada City and interred in the Old City Cemetery on June 16, 1860.

We wonder if some kind heart will not place a wreath of flowers on Private Meredith's grave in memory of his services on October 31, when his old captain will receive recognition of his services in the same battle.

They are having a few days' respite from the monotony of the school room while their teachers attend the Teachers' Institute at Truckee lasting through the week. County Superintendent Ella M. Austin spent Sunday in Truckee and completed all arrangewith the Truckee Chamber of Comments for entertaining the teachers The program opened Monday morning at 9 o'clock in the theatre building with a program arranged by the Grass Valley faculty.. Tuesday the Nevada City faculty had charge and Wednesday the teachers of the Truckee schools headed the proceedings. The Institute will last out the week and schools will reopen Monday as usual—to the disgust of the kiddies.

BURNING AUTO FOUND BUT DRIVER DISAPPEARS

A large touring car of the Chrysler variety, which swerved from the highway on the Lady Jane grade about four miles below Grass Valley about midnight Monday ran into the soft dirt bank, overturned several times and then returned to the highway with wheels in the air and on fire.

The burning machine was reported to Traffic Captain J. E. Blake of Grass Valley Tuesday morning who made an examination and had the remains of the vehicle hauled from the grade to one side.

The mystery of the case is that the driver failed to put in an appearance and was not found near the wreck. In fact whoever was driving the car simply vanished completely.

TOM AND JERRY PLACER CLAIMS CHANGES HANDS

The Becker placer mining interests of New York, last week is said to have purchased four of the Tom and Jerry claims formerly owned by the Fenton people. The property is located in the Quaker Hill district in the eastern part of Nevada county and in a section made famous by the "Red Dog" and the "You Bet" that is said to have produced their millions of dollars in gold in the past.

There is a considerable bank of paying gravel on the four claims of 160 acres each and is is stated that new owners will hydraulic the property. Application for a dam permission has already been filed with the state department of public works and actual work on the property is scheduled for immediate action.

In fact anticipating granting of a permit. The new owners commenced work at the Tom and Jerry Tuesday. The engineer for the company is James B. Stewart of Auburn.

MINING AT ALLEGHANY DISTRICT IMPROVING

(Special to The Nugget)

Mining is getting better all the time in the Alleghany district, both at Forest and Alleghany. The New York Company which recently took over the Ball Bountain property is erecting new buildings and shipping a large amount of machinery and other equipment. A large vrew of men are already employed. The Mugwamp, another new property recently taken over by a good party, is putting in good equipment. The Oriental has been making improvements in buildings and have a force of men working in the tunnels. Mr. Milt Bass is the superintendent. In fact all the old companies are running steady. There is no let up to the rich values taken from these rich gold mines in the Alleghany district..

The Madden Mining Company has opened up a new nead in No. 2 tunnel which is showing rich value. In the near future Mr. Madden says they will start work in the main tunnel which is one hundred feet below No. 2 tunnel and stope up under the rich values in No. 2 where he is now working at No. 3 tunnel which is about 600 feet above No. 2 tunnel. There is a big spring almost on top of the mountain and this tunnel is not far below the surface; $1400 was taken out of this drift. An engineer who, went over the property with Mr. Madden advised him to run the main tunnel right to the ledge under No. 3 tunnel that he believed that there were several other rich values would be found there. The iam un nneilsnwot found there. The main tunnel is now in 350 feet and about 200 feet mero will be required. The main tunnel at this point will be about 800 feet below tunnel No. 3. The mountain goes up steeply on each side ot Knaka creek giving this mine 3000 feet backs. Mr. Madden has settlement sheets to show that Selby Smelting Company paid several thousand dollars for rich ore shipped from this mine. This property is on the same lead and serpentine belt as the Brush Creek mine which is now running three shifts and taking out rich values. The Madden Gold Mining Company is a California corporation.

MRS. MURCHIE BURIED MONDAY AFTERNOON

The funeral of Mrs. Sarah Jane Murchie who died Friday evening at the Nevada City Sanitarium, was held Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the Holmes' Funeral Home, the Rev. H. H. Buckner of the Methodist Church officiating.

Mrs. Murchie was 81 years of age at the time of her passing and had lived in this city for many years. Her death leaves another gap in the ranks of the genuine old-time pioneers that lived and loved in the "Days of Old and the Days of Gold." Interment was made in Pine Hill cemetery.

Miss Katherine O'Connor of French Corral made this office a call last Saturday.

SUNRISE MINING COMPANY WILL INSTALL ELECTRIC EQUIPMENT

Considerable interest and some real excitement was created in mining circles the past week when, on the arrival of Secretaary-Treasurer De White from Seattle, information was given out that the Sunrise, about two weeks previous had struck ore that not only justified but required immediate installation of complete electrical equipment at the mine.

Mr. De White, accompanied by his mine superintendent, F. S. Pinch, while calling at The Nugget office on business last Saturday gave us the following information:

The strike of rich rock was made two weeks ago, but information was withheld the public pending the arrival of Mr. De White from Seatle. Since that discovery, the shaft has been sunk to a depth of 435 feet along the vein, with the exceptional values showing for the entire distance. Gold is now discernable at the bottom of the shaft..

This depth is the limit of the gasoline surface equipment and the hoisting cable, which must be replaced by modern machinery, electrically powered to follow the vein where crossing contacts and intersections will uncover large ore bodies.

Preliminary plans have already been made to bring electric power to the mining property. A power line has been surveyed across country and will bring the energy to drive new pumps, double drum hoist, compressors and cars for which Mr. De White will negotiate. It is proposed to install equipment, capable of sinking the shaft beyond the 2000 foot depth. At this point, the determination of the dip and values of the three well defined ledges on the 441 acre development will be known.

Of these three veins, two run parallel in a north-south direction, the vein of the recent strike dipping 45 degrees and located 300 feet in the hanging wall. The third vein runs in an east-west direction, slanting at 55 degrees and will intersect both north-south veins beneath the surface of the Sunrise Mining and Development acreage and at some point above the 2000 foot depth. It is these intersections, together with the fact that he Sunrise shaft lies in the famous yellow slate formation, that is giving the encouragement and enthusiasm to the men in the organiation. Residents of Grass Valley and Nevada City who have seen the free gold specimens already taken out of the shaft become excited when realizing the possibilities in this heavily mineralized area. This gold-bearing vein is three feet wide at present, but with ribbons and stringers reaches a width of eight feet. Large chunks of quart with free gold sprinkled over the surface, already taken from the mine, are of the fair exhibit variety.

Pending arrangements for the institution of electricity and placing of modern machinery, De White and his foreman, F. S. Pinch, have commenced drifting at the 400 station, blocking out ore bodies.

That the Sunrise Mining and Development Company property is favorably located for immense production is readily admitted by local engineers, who cite the Prudential and Norambagua poperrties on the southeast; the Polar Star Alcade, Normandie-Dulmaine and Gold Mound on the northwest and the North Star, Allison Ranch and Omaha on the northeast.

That this mine in the center of an active mining area remained isolated for such a long period was due to the agricultural outlook of the former owner. Known as the Fuchs ranch, in the heart of the Wolf Creek floodlands, this acreage was farmed for a great many years. Former owners, interested in agriculture alone, declined to till beyond the grass roots for gold. Within last few years, the property changed hands and a group of Grass Valley men prospected the ranch, finding gold ore almost immediately. Among these was Joe Pirt of Grass Valley. Lack of resources halted further developments until the event of the Sunrise Mining and Development Company.

This organiation is incorporated in Washington, with an authoried capitaliation of 1,000,000 shares of $1, non-assessable, common stock. The officers are Captain W. T. Loughlin, Seattle banker, president; Mrs. Cora De White, vice president and Charles De White, secretary-manager. Mr. De White plans to move to Grass Valley to actively superintendend the further developments.

B. C. OPERATOR LOOKING FOR MINING PROPERTY

John B. Freeman, mining man and capitalist of Penticton, B. C., was in Nevada City a part of last week and will return to this city about the first of the month. Mr.. Freeman owns and operates the "Forty-Nineth Parallel," a successful silver-gold producer in British Columbia and is a member of the Bank of Canada of Vancouver, B. C. He rather reluctantly admitted that he was here on a scouting expedition and was looking into one or two favorable-looking properties with the view of purchasing. Freeman is a well known mining man in the north and has proved himself a successful operator.

PROSPECTORS OPEN UP VEIN OF GOLD ORE

P. E. Fitzpatrick, S. G. Porter and H. M. Coffman have developed a good vein of gold ore in Lassen County, Calif., about four miles southwest of the Honey Lake Mine. The vein is opened by a 120-foot tunnel and a winze sunk to a depth of 5 feet. The bottom of the wine shows 42 inches of gold ore that is said to assay $40 a ton.

The owners have a small mill, recently installed, which was operated but a short time when failure of the water supply compelled them to shut down. Water is conveyedd 2700 feet from a spring through a pipe line. The ore is free milling and a good extraction can be made by amalgamation.

ALADDIN MINE OPENS NEW BED OF GRAVEL

Gravel exposed in new development work of the Aladin Mining Co., three miles from Placerville, is the richest yet foun in the mine, which was first opened many years ago and is developed by two long tunnels. Heretofore all work in gravel has been confined to the bench areas, as an elevation of 60 feet or more above the deep drainage tunnel, and a large volume of gravel of varying grade has been exposed.

In the company's recent work a short raise was driven from the level of the lower tunnel and a crosscut from this raise is now in cement gravel showing much free gold and containing a large quantity of black sand, which assays from $200 to $400 per ton. A machine of special design has been installed to recover the black sands at the lower end of the sluice.

From the incline of the bedrock opom which this gravel rests, it is indicated that the channel bed will be found just above the main tunnel and Supt. Clyde Collins is starting another crosscut to get under this point. The washing plant is treating 20 to 30 yards of gravel per day that is removed in development and it is expected that the mine will shortly be in condition for production on a substantial scale.

Pannings from the newly exposed faces of gravel appear to warrant the belief that this deepest part of the channel trough will yield a production averaging in value from $8 to $15 per yard. Costs can be held at a low figure as the operation is by gravity throughout.

INSTITUTE SESSION AT TRUCKEE INTERESTING

Tuesday morning at nine o'clock the teachers of Nevada County convened in the theater at Truckee for their session of almost a week's duration.

The proceedings of the institute opened with community singing lead by Harold George music supervisor of the city schools accompanied by Miss Annie Gray. Rev. P. H. Willis of Truckee pronounced the invocation.

Mrs. Ella M. Austin. county school superintendent, delivered the opening address, calling attention to the fact that this was the first institute held in Truckee in 25 years, and she spoke of the development in educational matters in that quarter of a century. She paid particular attention to the work that is being done in the way of speech correction and stated that there were 142 cases of speech defectives among the children of Nevada county.

The first speaker of the General Assembly was Leroy Armstrong, former secretary of the State Teachers Association and he talked on "Current Education, dealing with the question of retirement salaries for teachers.

Miss Elizabeth Halstead of the state office of corrective speech followed Mr. Armstrong and her talk dwelt almost entirely on speech defectives, embracing nervous hesitation, stammering and cluttering.

The next speaker was Dr. Vaughan MacCaughey, editor of the Sierra Educational News. He spoke on legislative measures and also dealt on the question of retirement salaries for teachers.

In the afternoon the high school section under the supervision of J. B. Underwood of Gras Valley met at the Truckee elementary school. The subject for discussion was "Some Major Problems Confronting Class Room Teachers."

Mrs. Ida S. Huffer opened the discussion on this subject and she was followed by Miss Mabel Stephens of the Grass Valley High School. Her subject was "Getting Pupils to Make Careful Preparation."

Miss Stephens pointed out that the teacher must impress the student with the necessity of having the proper amount of sleep and rest and said students from 10 years to 14 should have ten and a half hours of sleep. Miss McGuire was the next speaker and she spoke on the subject of "keeping pupils interested."

EXPLOSION AT MINE INJURES THREE MEN

Sunday morning last, Wm. G. Graham, owner of the Selby Flat Placer Mine, accompanied by an employee, John Barberi, and Bert Moody, repaired to the property to take up their usual daily labors. But work was not for them that day.

The men did not work at the mine on Saturday and were just commencing the day's shift on Sunday morning when the accident occurred. Graham was in advance of his co-workers and started into an upraise which was to be the scene of their day's work. He had a lighted aceteline lamp in his hand and when he had advanced but a short distance into the raise there was a terrific explosion. Graham was blown backward against Barberi, who was close behind him about to crawl up into the raise.

The searing flame of the burning gas was all around them and it passed them down into the tunnel and slightly burned Moody who was to follow them into the raise.

Moody assisted his two companions to the outlet of the tunnel and they were rushed to the Nevada Sanitarium where Dr. R. F. Werner administered to their injuries and alleviated their sufferings, which were intense.

Examination showed that Graham was terribly burned about the head, face, shoulders and arms, but his eyes were uninjured and he did not breathe into his lungs any of the burning gasses. Barberi, less injured than Graham, has bad burns about the head and face and shoulders, and his eyes, too, are uninjured, nor did he inhale any of the burning gas. Moody had his hair and eyebrows singed, but suffered only minor injuries.

He said the gas exploded with a roar like the detonation of dynamite and the flames followed down from the raise into the tunnel.

It is reported that the workings in the mine have tapped the old Mananita workings of early days and gas may have seeped from them. Being lighter than the air in the tunnel it worked its way up into the raise, in which there was no trace of gas when work ceased on Friday afternoon.

BALD MOUNTAIN MINE INSTALLING EQUIPMENT

Saturday an immense load of machinery consisting of a new hoist, air compressor and all auxiliary equipment for the famous old Bald Mountain Mine, located in the Forest district at Randsburg, passed through town en route to the mine where it is to be installed to facilitate the work of reopening the famous old property on an extensive scale.

The property is famous for its reputed enormous output of former years, said to amount to more than four million dollars. Like many other nearby districts, large quantities of untouched ore bodies have been opened up that with new and improved methods and machinery can and will be worked and developed into steady producers.

The Bald Mountain is now owned and operated under the management of Powers and Scott, experienced and progressive mining men who are pushing the rehabilitation and development of the Bald Mountain to the limit. Their activities in this direction give every promise of being highly successful.

DIVISION OF MINES A PUBLIC NECESSITY

To say that The Nugget, as well as the mine-owners and mining men in general, were not a little surprised at the appearance of an article published in criticism of the Department of Mines, and State Mineralogist Walter W. Bradly in his management of this important department, in the Mountain Messinger of September 27, is stating it rather mild.

The Messenger in this article takes occasion to charge Mr. Waler W. Bradley, State Mineralogist with being discourteous, incompetent and about all the ills that man is heir to that would disqualify him from holding his present position at the head of the State Department of Mines and Mining. Just what has lead up to th's unwarranted attack on Bradley, we know not, as in our opinion, and in the opinion of mining men in general. Bradley is certainly the right man in the right place. As far as discourtesy is concerned, any man, miner or otherwise, who has had dealings with either the Department of Mines or with Mr. Bradley personally, know the charge to be absolutely without foundation, and if not so serious would be laughable.

The nineteen years of faithful service of Walter W. Bradley in this office; continual service running through four different state administrations, speaks volumes in Mr. Bradley's defense as a competent, courteous and efficient director of the Division of Mines and Mining. Personally, publishing a mining paper, as we do, we have had a great deal of business with this department, and can say truthfully that nowhere have we ever received a kindlier or more courteous reception or encountered a greaer desire on the part of public officials to be of service than in Mr. Bradley's Department of Mines.

As to the qualification of Walter W. Bradley to hold his present position, nothing can be said to the contrary as his 19 years of constant capable service, ranging through all the different departments, is proof positive that he is the right man in the right place.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION URGED BY TREAS. JOHNSON

Patched and amended 161 times since 1879, California's constitution, basic law of the State, is in grave danger of falling to pieces.

The way to prevent such a tragedy lies in the adoption of measure No. 23 on the November general election ballot, calling for a Constitutional Convention for the state, at which an entirely new constitution will be framed.

These are the opinions of State Treasurer Charles C. Johnson, one of California's leading constitutionalists, who for many years has advocated that steps be taken to rewrite the constitution.

"Twenty constitutional amendments are before the voters at the election this year," said Mr. Johnson. "This in itself is proof that we are tampering with the constitution entirely too much. It is high time that the voters take some action to stop the enactment of what should be statutory law into the constitution."

To be certain that relief bepr ovided immediately, the last legislature devised two methods leading toward a new constitution, Johnson explained. One of these, the more practical, calls for a special election at which 120 delegates should be chosen who would meet in Sacramentoa nd draft a new constitution.

In the argument against the measure in the voter's pamphlet, it was brought out that the constitution commission would have a model constitution ready for the 1931 legislature, and it would be inadvisable to hurry the commission or do anything before it reports.

"Who ever heard of a committee framing a constitution for a state?" asks Johnson. "History has proven that the convention system is more effective. And if the findings of this special committee will be ready by January 1, 1931, they certainly will be available when the constitutional convention is called, which cannot be longer than a year from now.

"I believe that the people of California should vote YESo n No. 23, and get started at once toward framing a new constitution."

STUDY OF MINERAL SURFACE CONNECTION WITH FLOTATION

Investigators of flotation phenomena now agree that the mineral surface is one of the important determining factors in the study of the effect of various flotation reagents. In the microscopic laboratory and X-ray laboratories at the Intermountain Station of the United States Bureau of Mines, a study of mineral surfaces produced by crushing has been taken up, in cooperation with the University of Utah.

This work has for its object the intensive study of freshly cleaved mineral surfaces, such as are produced in the mills by grinding and embody the feed to the flotation machines. The initial work has been started on galena and evidence has been developed that there are many characteristics peculiar to galena surfaces which have either been overlooked heretofore or have been neglected in the study of flotation. There is reason to believe that freshly cleaved galena surfaces may be contaminated with soluble salts which have either crystallied from the solutions which have permeated the ore deposits, or are residual from the solutions from which the ore body was formed. Evidences of deformation of the galena through pressure and movement in the ore body are also indicated, and there is a possibility that through these natural influences the flotatiive characteristics of minerals may be caused to vary within quite wide ranges. In the study of galena ore from the Missouri district, it has been found that galena crystals in vugs and along certain lines of movement have been rounded and otherwse deformed. Whether or not these changes in physical characteristics will reflect themselves in differences in floatability, will be determined by flotation tests which will be carried out in connection with the microscopic and X-Ray work done on the various minerals.

CRAYCROFT FIRE CONTROLLED

Craycroft, some seven miles east of Downieville, was the scene last week of a stubborn forest fire that for a time became serious. The region is almost inaccessable on account of heavy brush and steep hillsides. Hard and persistent work finally subdued the flames and the firefighters returned home.

Sunday Closing "Half Baked" Legislation

California voters will be confronted at the polls next Tuesday with another "half-baked" legislative proposal—the Sunday Closing Act, Proposition 26, the last on the state list of amendments and initiatives It was put on the ballot by agents of the organized barbers of California and for the past ten months has been represented in state-wide propaganda as only a measure to "give the barbers a day of rest," a privilege they already have under state law.

Industry and business generally through the state along witlf the professions have awakened to the fact that Proposition 26, so naively offered as a measure affecting only barber shops, in truth and fact would put a billion dollars worth of California's "continuous process" industries in jail, threaten loss of jobs to thousands of workers dependent upon those industries and close down hundreds of retail establishments such as floral shops, delicatessen stores and other places of business upon which the public has come to depend. At the same time it excepts from its penalties of $250 and six months in the county jail, professional sports and recreations and nearly a score of other activities classified as necessary to public welfare.

Clergymen and church members who have studied the bill can find no good in it. Its terms would make it possible to buy a race horse chart on Sunday but a jail offense to sell a bible The housewife could buy a bottle of milk but would have to conspire against the peace and dignity of the State of California to buy a loaf of bread or flowers to decorate the Sunday dinner table. You can buy cigarettes, cigars and tobacco but you are out of luck if you are out of matches to light either the tobacco or the gas stove in your kitchen.

Proposition 26 would put you in jail for doing any work not specifically excepted in the measure or work that is not "necessary", either yourself or through the employment of others. It would be up to you to prove in court that the work was "necessary" every time you were arrested.

"A bad law that everyone ought to vote against," said President Frederick J. Koster of the California State Chamber of Commerce which has voted to oppose it.

RELIEVE THIS PUBLIC SERVICE INSTITUTION FROM TAXATION

Who was this Thomas Gainsborough that people should still, after two hundred years, be calling him great? Every afternoon, for eleven months of the year, an average of five hundred visitors at the Huntington Library and Art Gallery pass in front of portraits painted by him, saying: "O my, what Pictures!"

The son of wool manufacturer, born in England in 1727, he went to London as a 15-year old boy and finally became a rival of the celebrated Sir Joshua Reynolds, previously regarded as the unrivalled portrait painter of the eighteenth century.

Reynolds did not like rivals, nor did Gainsborough like Reynolds.

The story about the "Blue Boy" has been denied, but is still a good story. Reynolds had been telling artists that blue colors could not properly be used in pictures. To prove Reynolds wrong, the story goes, Gainsborough went out, found a fine looking boy—the son of a Soho iron monger—dressed him entirely in blue, and painted the "Blue Boy."

Besides the "Blue Boy," Henry E. Huntington bought ten additional portraits and one landscape by Gainsborough. He also acquired an even dozen of Reynold's paintings.

Among the Gainsborough porfoy, who was the wife of a member traits, that of Mrs. Henry Beauof Parliament during the American Revolution, is a top-notcher.

The whole of the Huntington collections of libraries and works of art has been deeded to a Board of Trustees for the use and benefit of the people, together with funds sufficient for the upkeep of the 207 acres of gardens, buildings and treasures, and at the coming election the people will have an opportunity, for the first time, to show their gratitude—by voting to relieve this public service institution from its taxation troubles.

Sea of Galilee

Deseribing Galilee a short generation after Christ's death, Josephus, who knew the district as its military governor, drew a picture of the country around the sea of Galilee that confirms its presentation by the gospels. He mentioned nine cities on the shores of the lake, none of them with less than 15,000 people, and described the land about as "so fruitful that all sorts of trees can grow upon it, for the temper of the air is so well mixed that it agrees very well with different sorts," such as fig trees, palms, olive and walnut trees.

FRENCH CORRAL

FRENCH CORRAL, Oct. 29.—(Special to The Nugget).—The first thought that comes is that The Nugget has a birthday this month so we will begin by sending heartiest congratulations and wishing years of future prosperity.

Beautiful October is nearing the close and soon the witches and hobgobblins will be out and mischievous youngsters will have a happy time.

Altogether things are "picking up" on the San Juan Ridge.

We learn that the Tabor place has been sold to parties who expect to build a home there.

The Boss Mine in Sweetland is being prospected by parties who worked there many years ago. That looks good.

Mr. Wm. Burnett has has his new home nearly finished.

Mr. May, who purchased the Kinney and Smith place opposite the Catholic church in Birchville, is building a new home. At present Mr. and Mrs. May are living in French Corral and while we shall be sorry to lose our good neighbors, we are glad to know they are to become permanent residents of the San Juan Ridge.

Mr. A.. Browning is putting in all spare time in building his new home on the old Moyiner property.

Mr. J. R. Haskett is making many improvements on the property known as the "Roberts or Villian place," which he purchased a short time ago.

Mr. Vivian of Oroville, a new resident, is working the Slide Mine with Mr. Dalberg, the owner.

Messrs. Monahan, Lense and Fiffin are renting part of Mrs. De Roatic's house while they are preparing for winter work on the mining property they have leased from Mr. Thos. Meyers. So, altogether things are looking brighter.

All the teachers were off for Truckee Monday a. m. and the school children are to enjoy a week's vacation.

Geo. L. Sutherland has returned to French Corral after a soujourn of of several weeks at the home of his boyhood in Sweetland.

Harry Browning is home from Browns Valley for a few weeks vacation before returning to that place to resume work for the winter.

W. E. Moulton, with a crew of men, has been busy doing repairing work on Pine Grove reservoir.

Mrs. Rose Williams of Grass Valley, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Leo Schwartz of Pleasant Valley, visited friends in French Corral Friday. French Corral was the home of Mrs. Williams' girlhood and for many years after her marriage.

Miss Barbara McMiron made a trip to Washington Friday and returned with Miss Louise Moulton who is teaching school at that place.

L. Tidell of San Francisco who represents the Utah Woollen Mills had business in this place Friday.

H. Haskins and children accompanied W. E. Moulton on his trip to Marysville Saturday.

Mrs. W. E. Moulton and daughter, Louise, and Mrs. E. Sutherland went to Sacramento Saturday.

Miss Millie Clerkin was a visitor Saturday. Willie Browning accompanied her on her return trip to Pike City.

Clyde Browning was down from the Mt. Alta Mine Sunday.

Geo. Pantages of Roseville had business here Sunday.

F. Clark and children of Sweetland were Sunday visitors.

Rev. Fr. 'Reilly held services in Birchville Sunday. He was accompanied by Clement Organ of Nevada City.

Mrs. L. Devy and daughters, Alice and Virginia, were Sunday visitors.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wilcox and children are visiting Mr. Wilcoxin's mother, Mrs. J. W. Culver, of this place. Mr. Wilcixin is manager of the Wissom power house near Auburn.

H. Browning and F.Bean made a trip to Smartsville, Sunday.

Find Structure Erected by Babylonian Monarch

A temple built by Nebuchadnezzar in approximately 600 B. C. has been discovered in Ur of the Chaldees by excavation of what appeared to be an insignificant mound. C. Leonard Woolley, director of the joint archeological expedition maintained at Ur by the University of Pennsylvania and the British museum, reported that the temple is in the best state of presevation of any ever found in Mesopotamia. The structure, which was added to and restored by Nabonidus, 50 years after it was built, lies in the inner corner of the northern harbor at Ur and was concealed by a mound whose excavation the expedition undertook "for topographical reasons." "What makes the building in every way remarkable is its condition," Woolley declared. "The walls stand without exception to a height of nearly 20 feet and even the whitewash on them remains in good condition. In all Iraq there is no other temple so well preserved. We have not attempted to clear the outside of the temple, but once inside one obtains an astonishing effect of completeness. This is the only place in Iraq where one can stand in a Babylonian temple and forget for a moment that it is a ruin."

Algerian Native Today Mixture of Many Races

The first impression of Algerian natives comes to the tourist when sailors and boatmen swarm up to his steamer at the time of landing. They are certainly a piratical and cutthroat-looking gang, decidedly picturesque, and anything but clean. Although they are descendants of pirates, they are considered awkward and stupid at managing a boat. In the streets of the towns are many oriental types—the Moors of mixed Spanish and Arabian blood have degenerated physically and mentally from the builders of the Alhambra, being now mostly beggars and petty laborers. The Arabs or Bedouins, "stolid and squalid," also look like a conquered race. Most of the shops are kept by Jews, but the Kabeles form the largest part of the population. These men are of a pure mountain race showing traces of Greek and Roman ancestry in their complexion and even in their laws.

Arithmetic Not Strong Point With Scientist

Another story about one of the world's great men, writes a correspondent to a columnist in the Manchester (England) Guardian, which is rather refreshing in that it puts us poor "mediocrities" on an almost equal footing with the shining lights of the world, has come to my hearing. It concerned the late Lord Kelvin.

One evening he was late in putting in an appearance at dinner, and a maid, wondering if anything was wrong, went to his study. The door was open, and she saw Lord Kelvin limping (he had a permanent limp after breaking his leg on Largs curling pond) up and down the room, pausing occasionally to refer to some papers on his desk, and muttering, loud enough for her to hear, "Seven and five's thirteen, seven and five's thirteen." The maid, whose practical mind visualized a good dinner being wasted, interrupted, "No, sir, seven and five's twelve."

Lord Kelvin frowned at the interruption, then smiled: "Of course it is," he said; "that's the problem solved!" and his dinner was still warm when he ate it.

See America First

"Are you going abroad next summer?"

"No," answered Senator Sorghum. "What's the use of traveling around among people who don't speak my language, and who couldn't vote for me even if they did?"—Washington Star.

THE CHAIRMAN

The boys of one of Doctor Stryker's classes at Hamilton college got a goose and tied it securely in his chair and pushed the chair under his desk, just before his expected arrival. He entered, pulled out his chair, and saw the goose occupying it.

"I beg your pardon, gentlemen," said he. "I didn't know you were having a class meeting!"—Christian Advocate.

Make a Hit—With Fans

"There's just one more device needed on the radio," remarked Mr. Grouch.

"Yeah? What's that?" asked Perkins, who had come over to listen in.

"A device that would make a hissing sound the blinkety-blank broadcaster of this trash could hear when you tuned out on him," growled Mr. Grouch, as he whirled the dial.

Scottish Market Cross Center of Civic Activity

It was practically certain that in Scotland the market cross practice began with William the Lion—A. D. 1143-1214. The symbol set up was always in one form or another the symbol of the Cross, signifying, first, that this spot was the official center of the civic life of the community, and, secondly (implying at least), that the ideals symbolized in the market cross were to be over all the ordinary affairs of life, even the practice of buying and selling in the market place.

That was the origin of market crosses in Scotland. They were called crosses because they were crosses, every one of them, and the old names remained, as names did, long after the crosses had disappeared from the structures.

For one regretted to say that although an actual cross was still to be found on certain of our market crosses in Scotland, there was not a single cross, so far as he had been able to find out where the cross had come down from the Reformation, in 1560. Wherever one found an actual cross on a market cross in Scotland either the whole structure was later than the Reformation or the cross had been put on as the result of a restoration.—Montreal Family Herald.

Idea of Metric System Originated in France

The theory of the metric system is that a meter is one ten-millionth part of the distance from the pole to the equator, which is a quadrant, or one quarter of the earth's circumference. The idea of a scientific standard of measures had been suggested as early as the Seventeenth century, particularly by the French astronomer, Jean Picard, who lived from 1620 to 1682. The suggestion took practical shape in 1790, when the national assembly of France appointed a committee to consider the question. The committee reported in favor of the standard being the one ten-millionth part of a quadrant of the earth's circumference. A commission was then appointed to measure the quadrant. In 1799 a report on the length of the meter was made. In the same year the assembly passed a law bringing in the new system of measures, the use of which became compulsory throughout France in 1801. Subsequent measurements of the quadrant proved that the meter had been made too small, so that it is now defined as the length of a certain bar of iridio-platinum which is preserved in the bureau des archives in Paris.

Our Debt to the Indian

People fail to realize how great an influence the red men have had on our present thought, religion, and language. Every town, county, and state is filled with Indian names. Our school books are full of Indian proverbs and our very characters are modified and often molded by our contact with the red men of the wilderness. There is scarcely a doubt that the dignity, reserve, and stately mien for which George Washington was famous were derived from his experience and training in the councils of the Indians. Every cigarette smoker of today is but making a white man's vice of a religious ceremony of the red men. Snowshoes, birch-bark canoes from which our canvas ones are modeled, the game of lacrosse, and the sign language, are examples of the inventions of our Indians.—Dan Beard in Boys' Life.

Cowboys' Gorgeous Attire

The Hungarian cowboy presents an appearance entirely unlike the typical cowboy of the American continent. He wears laces and embroidery and a skirt rich with decorations. In his hat he has a bright feather. His coat or jacket is filled with gay embroidery and has large flowing sleeves of lace. The skirt reaches to his ankles and is likewise richly worked in fanciful design. Below it, however, he wears trousers and shoes of sturdy manufacture. This garb is a traditional one which has been worn for centuries and the men are very proud of their appearance. This is their holiday dress and is modified to a considerable extent for everyday purposes.

"Muzuzah's" Significance

A muzuzah is a Jewish word meaning literally "door-post" and the Jewish Encyclopedia gives a complete account of its origin and significance. It is the name given to a rectangular piece of parchment inscribed with certain prescribed passages from the Book of Deuteronomy. This is then rolled up and inserted in a metal or wooden case or tube and affixed to the upper part of the right-hand doorpost. The pious Jew touches and kisses the muzuzah as he passes through the doorway. According to one of our readers, the word is sometimes used as a slang word for "kiss," its meaning arising out of the Jewish custom. —Detroit News.

Misled on Animals

A man of thirty had seen his first circus. A neighbor boy of fourteen had never enjoyed that experience and it was quite proper, therefore, for the man to give him a vivid description.

He started off something after this fashion:

"You first get your tickets, then you go down an aisle made of ropes and give your ticket to a man there. Next is a tent with the animals, cantaloupes and everything, and then you go into the big tent where the clowns are."

Well, Well!

Blinks—You can't beat a hard-boiled egg.

Jinks—Maybe not, but I just saw a cop beat one up.

LOW-PLACED FULNESS

Fulness introduced below a long, flat hipline is still a much favored treatment for daytime. In the black-and-white crêpe frock it takes circular form, being cut in one with front panels. A broad white cape collar, mounted in points in front and crossed over in surplice fashion, creates an enormously flattering neckline.

The washable white silk frock on the right, which has a pleasant seashore feeling, sponsors a pleated flounce, headed by a shaped band which repeats the bolero-like line of the deep yoke. A bow drapes the neckline effectively. Note the curving outline of the flounce in both cases.

J. J. FITZGERALD, FORMER RESIDENT HERE, DEAD

Lawrence J. Fitzgerald, for many years a resident of this city where he was engaged in business, died Tuesday in San Francisco. He left Nevada City about eight years ago to make his home in the Bay City, but his heart was always in his old home in this city and he took great delight in meeting old friends from his old home when they visited in San Francisco.

"Larry" Fitzgerald was a genial old gentleman, with the happy faculty of making friends with every one he came in contact with. He was blessed with optimim. Every thing that was was good, was his philosophy. A man might commit some error but Larry always found some good thing that he had done and that he remembered and the bad passed from his mind. There was good in everyone and he always found it.

He was a native of county Mayo, Ireland, but had lived in this country for many years.

In addition to hundreds of old friends in this county who will be sorry to learn of his death, he leaves the following nephews and nieces: Misses Lizzie and May Griffin, Sacramento; and Judge Franklin A. Griffin and Charles A. Griffin of San Francisco.

Interment will be made in Sacramento.

HALLOWE'EN PARTIES SATURDAY NIGHT

Hallowe'en was observed in this city Saturday night in a very quiet, orderly manner. A number of parties were held by the young folks at which ghosts, gobblins and spooks were in evidence and as far as we could learn all had a gloriously good time and thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

Among the successful parties held was that of Miss Louise Schreiber who was hostess at a Hallowe'en party at her home on Broad street. A group of her girl and boy friends were present and the evening was pleasantly spent. Games were played and pries awarded to Dorothy Worthely and Bob Tucker. Refreshments were served at a table whose decorations carried out the spirit of hallowe'en.

SUNDAY NIGHT FIRE ON COMMERCIAL ST.

A fire originating in a group of emptly buildings on Commercial street near Coyote street brought out both fire companies on a general alarm and for a time looked serious. Prompt arrival of the fire brought the conflagration under control with minor damage.

Nightwatchman William C. Jefferies, on his rounds, discovered the fire as he came up Main street from the Plaa. He turned in the alarm from the box and than ran to No. 1 fire house and turned in a general alarm. The fire at this time was burning fiercely between the two buildings, sending a column of flame and smoke high in the air. The firemen were soon at the point where the fire was burning and quickly extinguished that, and also smothered the fire which had worked its way through the attics of the vacant building owned by George A. Legg and to the attic and roof of the Keystone Market..

They worked quickly and the fire was under complete control in less than ten minutes. A short time longer was required to completely extinguish it.

Investigation next morning by Fire Chief Otis D. Hardt, seemed to indicate that the fire had started between the walls of the buildings owned by George A. Legg and Charles E. Kent, both of which are vacant. The accepted theory is that rats had accumulated a quantity of loose material between the two buildings and matches that possibly were a part of it became ignited.

The damage is estimated at about $1000.

"EVERYBODY WORKS BUT DAD " AN' HE'LL WORK TOO

So says Harold Robinson, president of the Grass Valley-Nevada City Ski Club while on a visit to this city in company with a number of Grass Valley business men and Ski enthusiasts conferring with Nevada City winters sport lovers regarding the site of the proposed ski course.

The more the site is examined, the more desirable it becomes, said President Harold Robinson and the more desirable it is to get the course in shape for winter sports before putting the course in shape and the snows come.. All who have not seen the lay-out are asked to come out Sunday and lend a hand.

Wm. M. Sharp will have charge of one interested in winter skiing is invited to come out and not to forget to bring their hatchet or ax with them. Those who work real well are promised a free lunch at noon.

RETURNS FROM VACATION

C. E. Pederson, member of the City High school faculty, was one of the speakers at the Methodist church at Grass Valley last Sunday evening. Mr. Pederson spent his vacation in Europe and his description of the Passion Play, which he had the pleasure of seeing while abroad, was very interesting.

ELECT VERNON STOLL DISTRICT ATTORNEY

On next Tuesday, the 4th day of November, you will again attend the poles for the purpose of selecting persons to fill certain of the public offices and showing your approval or disapproval of certain amendments to the statutes of this state.

At that time you will choose a District Attorney, who will represent the people of this County and State in such legal controversies, both civil and criminal, as may arise during the next four years. I am again soliciting your support for my candidacy for this office.

The District Attorney has many duties, most of which are prescribed by statute. There are other duties also, which though not specifically provided, necessarily arise from those set forth.

The District Attorney must serve the interests of the people in the same thorough manner as he would for a client in private practice. He must investigate the facts in all civil controversies, or criminal complaints which come before him. If it becomes necessary, he must take the initiative in all aggrevated cases. He must be sure of his facts, and study and understand the law involved. If he believes that the position of the people is right, he must exert himself to the utmost in the presentation of the case to the Judge and Jury.

I am willing to devote my time, to the exclusion of all other practice if necessary, to the management of the affairs of this office.

The practical side of every question must be considered, as it must in any case with which an attorney must deal in private practice, but there are circumstances in which the ends of justice must be served, regardless of practical consideration.

I am asking for your vote as a candidate for the office of District Attorney, and not on the basis of sympathy, and I am unaware of the fact, if there is any person boosting for me on that basis, I have made absolutely no promises of employment in return for support, or as to the matter of policy, beyond expressing myself to the effect that if the people seek and secure a change in this office, I shall exert myself to make it a change for the better.

(Signed)

VERNON STOLL.
